(IAC-M-145, 16 March)

1. Action: Approved.

Soviet Capabilities
in Guided Missiles
(IAC-D-81, 10 March 1954;
Memorandum for DCI from Assistant Secretary of Defense (R&D) dated 26 March, circulated to members 29 March)

3. Action: Agreed to undertake a National Intelligence Estimate on the status and future course of Soviet guided missile development. The Board of National Estimates will be augmented by scientific advisors and members were invited to nominate such advisors. The estimate's scope will include points raised by both FCDA and Mr. Quarles, will initially be open-ended as to time covered, and will be completed at a date judged realistic on the basis of further consideration by the Board of National Estimates.

4. Discussion: The Acting DCI felt that this subject was so important and embraced so many aspects of intelligence production that it should be treated on a broad rather than a narrower basis. It was recognized that the subject matter had major military implications and that the instant case would establish no precedent.
